DOUBT ABOUT THE SECOND BOSTON BOAT. NEW-YORK YACHTSMEN NOT SURE OF THE SYN.

DICATE CUP-DEFENDER FROM THAT CITY. No little surprise was expressed by New-York yachtsmen when recent dispatches were received from Boston announcing that a second cup-defender would be built in that city. It was said that a syndicate had been formed which would build another S5-footer to assist the Paine boat in defending Boston's yachting reputation. Pains boat in defending Bosten's yachting reputation.

It was also said that an order had been given to Stewart & Binney, the Boston draughtsmen, for designs, and this was generally taken as final proof that two Boston yachts would take part in the trial races next september. Some doubt, however, has recently been expressed by the best posted yachtsmen in New-York as to the building of the record best. However, they have been doubt, the best would be the building of the record best. and boat. Recent dispatches from Boston announced that only four subscribers have been secured toward the fund to build the boat. As they are not wealthy men, and as it is estimated that the cost of designing, building and as it is estimated that the cost of designing, building and maintaining such a yacht during the coming season would be over $50,000 at the lowest estimate, it seems probable that, unless more subscribers are secured, the boat will not be built. That Stewart a Binney have actually received an order for the plans seems open to grave doubt. It is known here that one of their draughtsmen has been applying for work in New-York and it is improbable that they would reduce their force with such a improbable that they would reduce their force with such a big contract on their hands. Regarding the Herresholl boats, in which there is so

Regarding the Herresholl boats, in which there is so much interest, Henry J. Gielow, a well-known New-York yacht designer, said yesterday: "I have good reason to believe that the boat for the first syndicate will be similar to the Carroll boat, which was announced as $4 foct on the water line and 123 feet over all. There is the definite the property of the strength and St feet on the water line and 123 feet over all. There is little donot that she will be a centreboard craft, and probably the only disorence between her and that Typheon, as the Carroll boat will be called, will be in the thickness of the plates for the latter will have to cross the ocean. It is probable that the second syndicate boat will be of a different type. I understand on good authority that she will be of the "fin-keel" variety, and should consequently be speedy. Otherwise her dimensions will, I telleve, be about the same as the Carroll and the first syndicate boats."

When asked about the two Boston cup-defenders, Mr.

riety, and should the release be about the same as the her dimensions will, I believe, be about the same as the Carroll and the first syndicate boats."

When asked about the two Boston cup-defenders, Mr. Glelow said: "It seems to me peculiar that the Paines of Lawley should have trouble in finding steel for their plates. Any of the big rolling malls in Pennsylvania could turn out enough for an S5-footer in one day. It is said, however, that the order has at last been placed with Lawley, and that the building has been aiready with Lawley, and that the building has been aiready with Lawley, and that the building has been aiready with build at all, and I do not expect to see more than four boats in the trial races, and not that, unless the Carroll boat returns from England in time."

This opinion is in strong contrast with that of a prominent New-York yachtsman—in fact, the commodore of one of New-York's big clubs—who said to a Tribune reporter a few days ago: "I know of eight boats now being built or being designed which will take part in the trial races. Besides the three which the Herrshods are building, two will come from Boston, another from New-York, while there are two more now in course of construction up the river."

When asked to give more definite information about the unknown boats the commodore refused to say anything

YALE'S WARSITY CREW OUT FOR PRACTICE. New-Haven, Conn., Feb. 15 (Special).-Captain Ives. of the Yale Varsity crew, has ordered of Waters, of Troy, N. Y., a pair-oar and two paper shells. These will be the equipment of the Yale Navy this spring. The paper shells are almost exactly the same as those The paper shells are almost exactly the same as those used last year by both Harvard and Yale. They are after the model imported by Harvard two years ago from England. The opinion was general that Yale would get an aluminum shell this year, a theory which was strengthened by the visit of Captain Ives to Philateleville, where the samples of the metal-

CHANGES IN THE BASEBALL RULES FAVORED. The Committee on Rules of the National League and nerican Association of Baseball Clubs, which has held quent sessions at the Hoffman House since last Thursday, made public yesterday the result of its work. The committee, which is composed of John T. Brush, C. H. Byrne and H. R. Von der Horst, will report at the Daylor meeting to be held at the Fifth Avenue Hotel on March 7, but in order to allow those interested plenty of time to consider their recommendations before they are finally acted upon, their report was made public yesterday. While no radical changes in the playing rules of the game are favored, those advocated are of sufficient importance to interest all lovers of baseball, and the committee de-sires that arguments for and against the proposed changes should be heard before they are acted upon. The most important of these is the removal of the pitcher's position from where it is now, fifty feet from the home base to the centre of the infield, which is about sixty-three feet away.

The committee's report favors: No enlargement of the inficid now in uso; removal of the pitcher from his present position to the centre of the infield; the abolition present position to the centre of the infield; the abolition of a pitcher's box and the substitution therefor of a boundary plate covering a tweive-inch space, to which the of all rules applying to the duties, power and responsibilities of umpires, and a rule governing official scorers, which provides that a player making a sacrifice hit which
